BIOGRAPHY:

Les McKeown is a serial founder/owner, sought-after advisor, bestselling author, and in-demand speaker.

Les is a native of Ireland. He first distinguished himself as that country's youngest-ever accounting partner. After time at Price Waterhouse, Les became a serial entrepreneur – launching over 40 businesses from a Pizza Hut master license to a graphic design agency, from a tool and die manufacturing company to one of Ireland's leading contemporary art galleries.

He simultaneously co-founded a business incubation consultancy that grew to 13 offices worldwide.

One of his many achievements there was creating the European Union's award-winning 'Entrepreneurship Program' that launched literally hundreds of businesses that employed thousands of people. Les sold his share in that business then relocated to take over the firm's US operations.

Now based in Marblehead MA, Les works with senior leaders every day to help them restore equilibrium to their companies, re-ignite confidence in their own management skills, and lead their teams forward into the next stage of growth. He also spends time writing, teaching, and speaking about organizational success.

Les has appeared on CNN, ABC, BBC, Inc, Entrepreneur magazine, USA Today and The New York Times.

His clients span industries and include Harvard University, Pella, Chiron Corporation, T-Mobile, United Technologies, American Express, Canadian Defense Department, and Verisign.

"Les McKeown has uncovered the core dynamics of organizational growth.
And oh yeah, he nailed how to address some key opportunities in my own company."

-David Allen, bestselling author of Getting Things Done and Making It All Work
